OWS "put inequality on US agenda"

RussiaToday online - May 12 interview of EPS Trustee Kenneth Arrow

"At first, OWS seemed ridiculous, but it has changed national attitudes to income inequality - a major problem in the US, says one of world's best-known economists, Nobel prize-winner Kenneth Joseph Arrow. And that is a fine thing, he adds.

RT: The global economy is still not fully recovered from the recent financial crisis, and now we have many economists saying that we are going into another recession or that we're going to have another wave of crisis hit us. What's your take on that?

Kenneth Arrow: I think the answer is "we don't know." The American economy seems to be recovering on a fairly solid basis: slow, but I don't see any particularly obvious instability in it. The European debt crisis has not been resolved, but at the moment immediate fires have been dampened. I am disturbed about the tendency - which is partly true in the US, but much more true in some parts of Europe - of too much austerity. When we have a condition of deficient demand - massive unemployment - I think the idea that you have to stimulate the economy through government spending or some other good way - tax decreases - is pretty clear. We could be recovering faster from our problems in the US, but we don't have the extremes of Great Britain or France. So I'm a little worried that this recovery will be slower than it needs to be."

EPS Netherlands/Belgium affiliate has launched its new website.

The EPS European portal is evolving with more European affiliate websites coming soon.

The Dutch-Flemish Affiliation of Economists for Peace and Security (EPS NL/FL) is a cooperation of Dutch and Flemish economists. It was founded in 1990 by Nobel Prize Laureate in economics Jan Tinbergen.

EPS NL/FL emphasizes the relationships between economy and peace in the conviction that knowledge of these relationships and the desire to act accordingly are essential conditions for sustainable peace.

EPS is part of a global community of experts on the economics of military affairs, research and policy institutes, grass-roots and grass-tops activists, and working groups on peace and security policy. Among them are Nobel Prize Laureates in economics Kenneth Arrow, Lawrence Klein, Amartya Sen, Robert Solow and Joseph Stiglitz.

Barack Obama: Use Former War Budget to Boost US Economy

US president kicks off election campaign by declaring that US should move focus from foreign wars to domestic growth - guardian.co.uk, May 5, 2012

"Barack Obama has declared that his goal of defeating al-Qaida is within reach and that the withdrawal of US forces from Afghanistan would free up money to help rebuild the US economy.

"The US president said... that it was time to focus on domestic concerns, such as helping the middle class who have been squeezed by the economic downturn.

"Four days after he visited Afghanistan, Obama said that money saved from ending wars should be used to reduce the country's debt and to boost healthcare, education and infrastructure."

Call for submissions: Environmental/Public Policy

Conflict Resolution Quarterly publishes scholarship on relationships between theory, research, and practice in the conflict management and dispute resolution field to promote more effective professional applications. Conflict Resolution Quarterly is sponsored by the Association for Conflict Resolution.

Articles may focus on any aspect of the conflict resolution process or context, but a primary focus is the behavior, role and impact of third parties in effectively handling conflict at all levels, from the interpersonal to the international. All theoretical and methodological orientations are welcome.

Submissions received by July 1, 2012 will be considered for a Colloquy edition of CRQ focusing on Environmental/Public Policy issues. Submissions received after this date will be considered for publication outside of this Colloquy.

For more information on this call for submissions, see

Call for papers

There is a dramatic rise across the world in cross-border, transnational corporation-driven and foreign government-driven, large-scale land deals. Such "land grabs" revolve around the production and sale of food and biofuels, conservation and mining activities. Understanding the social, economic and political consequences is an important challenge.

As a follow-up to the highly successful International Conference on Global Land Grabbing held in 2011 at Institute of Development Studies (IDS), University of Sussex, Brighton, UK, the Land Deal Politics Initiative (LDPI) is organizing a second international academic conference to be held October 17–19, 2012 at the Africana Studies Center at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY, and have just announced a call for papers.

The organizers invite papers that offer rigorous and innovative analysis based on recent, original field research. Doctoral students and younger researchers, particularly from the global South, are especially encouraged to participate. The deadline for submission of abstracts to landpolitics\(at\)gmail.comgmail.com) is May 31, 2012.

Information about submission requirements can be found at <http://www.future-agricultures.org/land/7669-call-for-papers-land-grabbing-conference-october-2012-usa>.

Rediscovering Government

A New Roosevelt Institute Initiative

On Wednesday, March 28, the Roosevelt Institute launched a new, flagship initiative on the role and purpose of government, with a successful and engaging daylong conference. Among the speakers were Nobel laureate and EPS Trustee Joseph Stiglitz and New York Attorney General Eric Schneiderman.

The conference was only the beginning, however; the conversation continues on the initiative's website, which includes a blog, a library of related work, and video, as well as other resources. It also continues in a series on New Deal 2.0 exploring how to better value government in America, with posts from Madrick, Richard Kirsch, Sabeel Rahman, and others.

To find out more about the Roosevelt Institute's new initiative, visit the new website:

Homeland Security Degree

Case on Terrorism

"Since the attacks on the World Trade Center buildings on September 11, 2001, the word terrorism has gone from a rarely heard expression to a part of everyday lexicon. After September 11, America declared a War on Terror, but acts of terror continued to rise. In fact, some reports show the monthly average terrorism incidents increased by 167% after the World Trade Center attacks of 2001. With terrorism becoming such a constant in the news and a concern in everyday life, it is important for everyone to have an understanding of what truly constitutes a terrorist act."

SIPRI launches international search for new Director

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, SIPRI, is a leading international institute with staff drawn from around the world, dedicated to independent research into conflict, security, armaments, arms control and disarmament. SIPRI consistently ranks as one of the world's top think tanks, based on the reliability of its data, analysis, consultations and recommendations, which are all highly valued by policymakers, practitioners, experts and the media.

Based in Stockholm, Sweden, and established in 1966, SIPRI has in recent years considerably expanded its staff, budget and overseas presence while building a dynamic research and outreach agenda to illuminate and respond to the fast-changing international security order. SIPRI also has research staff based in Beijing and Washington DC, and well-established, on-the-ground partnerships and operational networks across the globe.

As the current director's successful tenure draws to a close, SIPRI seeks a successor to lead this world-renowned institute.

We seek candidates with:

- Strategic vision, global perspective, intellectual energy, and a commitment to SIPRI's values as an international, independent, impartial and empirically authoritative research institution
- World-class leadership, managerial and fundraising skills, who thrives in a dynamic, open and intercultural environment
- Strong record of accomplishment and representational abilities working with international diplomatic, academic, media and philanthropic stakeholders
- High professional standing in the fields of international security and foreign affairs

Help end US taxpayer-financed human trafficking

Project On Government Oversight supports anti-trafficking legislation

"Imagine being in a war zone, confined to a dank, filthy, windowless warehouse for months. You're cut off from communicating with your family and friends back home and unable to leave because your passport has been taken away by a company that had promised you a high-paying job working for a US contractor.

"It's modern-day slavery and it's a fate that thousands of foreign workers have found themselves in during our decade of wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. What makes it even more outrageous is that it has gone on under the nose, and sometimes with the knowledge of, the US government. It's time we end human trafficking financed by US taxpayers.

"The proposed legislation that Congress will consider (perhaps as soon as this week) contains many of the recommendations that POGO made to a House subcommittee—chaired by Rep. James Lankford (R-OK), who has introduced legislation in the House—in the fall to bolster the laws and regulations currently governing trafficking. The reforms would hold contractors and subcontractors and the government officials who write them checks accountable. It also calls for contractors to develop monitoring plans and includes harsh penalties for those companies that do business with human traffickers."

Write your Member of Congress today in support of this legislation:
